

Rev. Sue Nilson Kibbey serves as Director of the Bishop Bruce Ough Innovation Center at United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio. Sue's local church ministry appointments have included a variety of roles, including executive pastor of Ginghamburg United Methodist Church in Tipp City, Ohio—partnering with senior pastor Mike Slaughter for a decade of dramatic growth, including both local and global missional fruitfulness.

Most recently, Sue has served on the executive staff of the United Methodist West Ohio Conference as the creator and director of the Missional Church Consultation Initiative (MCCI). This training, coaching and resourcing initiative has now spread across several United Methodist Conferences, eventually engaging nearly 200 churches of all sizes and settings around the country in creative revitalization resourcing for a fresh season of impact.

Sue is a nationally recognized trainer, consultant and author of multiple books and resources, each aimed to equip and fuel the spiritual and missional renewal of pastors, leaders and congregations. Sue's greatest passion is igniting church-wide congregational momentum with what she terms a "Breakthrough Prayer Initiative," which was the foundational heartbeat of the Missional Church Consultation Initiative and has now spread far beyond as independent training/equipping for thousands of church pastors, leaders and members.

Sue has written a number of books and resources—learnings from her own church leadership experience and through her training and consulting.

These include, available at Cokesbury.com and Amazon.com:

Floodgates: Holy Momentum for a Fearless Church @2016, Abingdon Press

Ultimate Reliance: Breakthrough Prayer Practices for Leaders @2019, Abingdon Press (small group 5-session resource, with supporting DVD of short breakthrough prayer video stories)
